CAUSES OF HIGH PRICES.—The high price of all commodities is due to the excessive redundancy of inconvertible paper currency. which is almost made a legal tender for all purposes. The plain legal tenders or greenbacks amount to four hundred and fifty millions of dollars, and the National Bank notes are payable in these legal tenders, which, in effect, makes them all legal tenders. The aggregate amount of paper currency is not less than seven hundred and fifty millions; and if it was doubled to-morrow, all prices would be doubled. If it was reduced one-half, all prices would, other things being equal, be reduced one half. Every one assumed, with Secretary Chase, that the greenback currency, which was issued only to meet the exigencies of war, would be retired upon the advent of peace, and that the three hundred millions of National Bank currency would supply a sufficient circulating medium, and be convertible into specie. Three hundred millions is as large a sum in paper as can be sustained on a specie basis. That is the opinion of Secretary Mc-Culloch, as expressed in his report on the finances. But the greenbacks are not to be with drawn. They cannot be withdrawn under the loan act, except at the slow rate of ten millions for the first six months, and seven millions a month afterwards. Contraction of the currency was thought to be as easy a matter as its expansion. All nations have tound this to be an living, will come down, but very slowly and gradually, owing, not to currency contraction, nor to a fall in gold, but to over-importation | H resumed his business at the old stand, and manufacture. - Sunday Herald . THE DEATH OF TWIN BROTHERS. - Mr. A will, of the Boston Evening Commercial, a brother of the deceased referred to, makes the error; and the laws of finance are as applicable to us and to our condition as to other nations in other times. Contraction of the paper currency must be gradual and slow, and therefore prices of merchandise, and the general cost of mortality: "Death of Twins."—A paragraph, from a New Bedford paper in relation to the death of twins in Swansey, was in correct in the state ment that one of them was found dead in bed, and that there was no assignable cause for his decease. His illness, though of short duration, was observable before his brother's death vet was not thought to be serious until the atternoon following, some twelve hours before proving fatal. It was treated as a threatened that may favor him with their patronage. attack of a fever, of which the brother died, mh 24-tf but its character was not then known or suspected by his attendants, or physician. A few hours preceding his death, he fell into a deep sleep from which all efforts to arouse him proved ineffectual, and death ensued without a struggle. The condition and death of his brother doubtless caused that depression of mind which produced congestion of the brain, of which he died. From their earlier years, until of age, these brothers were so much alike in features and general tappearance, that few persons out of the immediate family connection could distinguish one from the other. an entire new stock of From infancy to within a few years, they were always together, rarely separated for a day or night, and their habits, manners, thoughts, feelings, and tastes were as much alike as it is possible for two persons to be. Under such circumstances it was not probable that either would long survive the decease of the other, yet the occurrence is no less of an extraordinary character."

CIVIL RIGHTS BILL.—There have been seveoccurrences within the past three or four days which, it is expected, will bring before the courts of this city the question as to what are the rights of colored persons. The first was that of a colored man, on Friday, taking a seat among other passengers in one of the York road railway cars. The conductor invited him to go to the front platform, where colored persons had always the privilege of riding. He insisted on his right to remain in the car, but the conductor, as also the other passengers, required him to leave. He noted down the number of the car and then departed. On the same night James Williams, colored, appeared at the ticket office of the Holiday Street Theater and asked for a ticket. The agent, on learning from him that it was for himself, refused to sell a ticket. He went out on the sidewalk and acted in such a disorderly manner as to compel Policeman Ray to conduct him to the Middle District Station, whence Justice Spicer, after an examination, the next morning communitted him to jail. On Saturday night a colored man, name not learned, appeared at the Eastern District Station, claiming protection. He stated that he had gone into a public house on Eastern, or Canton avenue, and asked for a drink, but the proprietor refused him the liquor. He claimed that as a citizen he was entitled to the same privileges as white men. Neither the officer in charge or the magistrate could afford bim the protection asked for, and consequently he L. retired .- Balt. American
